

Zearn School Lead

Establishing a School Lead is one of the most effective ways to create a successful Zearn implementation. Schools whose Zearn usage recently resulted in impressive learning gains achieved that consistent usage with the help of School Leads. These Leads fostered a positive culture around Zearn for both students and teachers, leading to authentic learning and significant growth.

What does a School Lead do?

Own Zearn Admin Reports

School Leads take time each week to review the Zearn Admin Reports and see how the Zearn implementation is progressing at their school. They notice when classrooms gain momentum and when they may need support.

Support teachers

School Leads schedule time to support teachers as they implement Zearn. By listening, sharing ideas, and connecting teachers with each other, they help improve teaching and learning with Zearn throughout the school.

Celebrate progress

School Leads value their school culture and find ways to celebrate students' learning on Zearn. They develop rituals that inspire and motivate students. They create systems that recognize students for their growth, progress, and perseverance.

How does a School Lead get started?

1 Meet with the principal

Once the School Lead has been selected, they should meet with the principal and align on how Zearn is being implemented. That includes how much time students will spend on Zearn, when that time will occur within the daily schedule, and how they will communicate these expectations to staff.

2 Access their Zearn admin account

The School Lead should confirm they have an administrator account in Zearn. They do this by signing in, clicking the Reports tab, and ensuring they can see the Admin Reports. Contact schoolaccounts@zearn.org for help getting admin access.

3 Register for training

The School Lead should connect with the principal or district Zearn team to learn the schedule for upcoming Zearn training. School Leads should encourage teachers to register and then attend the educator training alongside them. School Leads should attend the Instructional Leader Training as well, if it is provided by the district.
